Local College Gridiron Teams Ready for Work

Will Start Practice Wednesday-Rally for G. W. U.

While the "Old Fan" is perusing the major league standings and wondering and guessing what club will finally capture the bunting in the respective circuits, there are a few thousand young men throughout the country planning to resume high-brow work this fall, and just at present their minds are turning to end runs, center smashes or off tackle plays and all things pertaining to the art of advancing an inflated pig skin down a field speckled with grimy warriors, whose one idea is to prevent the pigskin from being advanced. The first external indication of the football activities will be seen in this vicinity on Wednesday afternoon, when the candidates for the noon, when the candidates for the Georgetown football eleven will report to Coach Albert Exendine for their initial practice, on the Hilltop Field.

The Hilltoppers this season have one of the longest and hardest schedules ever attempted. Last week what was to have-been the opening game of the season with Randolph-Alacon on Saturday, September 22, was cancelled because of the postponing of the opening of school until Octaber 2. Georgetown's first game will be with the 'Midehipmen at Annapolis, Md., on October 7. The Blue and Gray eleven will have twenty-one days in which sonal supervision of Mr. Wilner, in our to prepare for this contest and already many of the students and alumni are talking of handing the cadets a trimming.

Although the schedule is a hard one, the Although the schedule is a hard one, the Hilltoppers have a grand chance of coming through with honors, as the material at the hill this season is about the best that ever turned out for a Blue and Gray grid team. Georgetown can present almost a veteran eleven, as they lost but two players of their great combina-tion of last season.

"Exie" has five of the fastest players that ever pulled on a cleated shoe for his end positions in "Reds" Cusack, Cronin, McGuire, Tracy and Murray, all veterans of last season's squad, while in tackle positions he will have Dan O'Connor, the star tackle of the 1915 eleven; Showalter, Dewburst, Gorman and McShowalter, Dewburst, Gorman and McSho Showalter. Dewhurst, Gorman and Mc Carthy, all veterans,

Capt. Johnny Mahlum and big Frank Green, the veteran guards of last sea-son, will no doubt find but little op-position for the guard position, while Burland and McDonough are veteran

In addition to the improvements made

In addition to the improvements made upon the grand stand, which have been numerous, the association has paid par-ticular care to the condition of the track the entire surface having been resodded during the summer and the track itself placed in the best possible condition. On this account, it is expected that new rec-ords will be not unusual at the coming

The quality of the horses which have already been entered for the various stakes and purses, according to Mr. Rehstakes and purses, according to Mr. Rehberger, is exceptionally high. In addition to the Belmont, Wilson and Herz stables, practically every well-known owner and trainer in the country will be represented at the Havre de Grace meet, and the class of horses running there will be even better than usual on account of the backward season which has delayed the conditioning of some of the thoroughbreds as much as two or three months. This will insure good sport, inasmuch as it will work to prevent any of the entries from being "stale" from overwork or having been at the top of their speed for having been at the top of their speed for too long a time.

The final easential for a successful meeting—jockeys of the highest class—will not be lacking, for the association has been notified that practically all the best riders in the country will have mounts during the twelve days of the Havre de Grace meet. The McTaggart brothers and others of the same class will be present, and the owners the assured of the best possible handling of their horses.

Only a spell of fine weather is needed to insure the most prosperous meet in the history of the track.

The present arrangement of the machines makes it possible to buy a ticket on any horse without standing in line for more than a very short time. Particular attention has been paid to the machines which will handle the smaller bets, while mutuels accepting the larger wagers have been situated away from the crowded portion of the ring.
